

1. Select Settings with the remote control in the main interface below.

2. After entering Settings, select Information see the FCC ID number and statement as shown below.

|                      |                                                                                                                       |
|----------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Settings             | Name: W10ELocation:                                                                                        |
| Network              | Model: W10E                                                                                                    |
| Display / Volume     | User Name: nixplay@mynixplay.comDisplay Group:Serial Number: 1132012078445831Display ID: 660a33a1e9cba9dc |
| Time Zone            |                                                                                                                       |
| Software Update      | Firmware: 6.4.8System: v1.05Application: 6.4.9-dev (qa)                                                       |
| Advanced             | FCC ID: 2ABC5-W0535IC: 11693A-W0325                                                                               |
| Information > | IP Address: 10.0.1.151MAC Address (Wifi): 08:ea:40:98:c2:edDownload queue count: 0                            |
| Debug tools          |                                                                                                                       |

This device complies with Part 15 of the FCC Rules.
Operation is subject to the following two conditions:

- (1) this device may not cause harmful interference, and
- (2) this device must accept any interference received, including interference that may cause undesired operation.