A photograph of a small, green printed circuit board (PCB) with a black integrated circuit (IC) and a silver component. The PCB is populated with various electronic components, including a large black IC with the text "93LC46" and "000" visible, a silver component labeled "1.2 Gohm", and several smaller components. The board is mounted on a blue, textured surface.

A close-up photograph of the side of a black smartphone. The device is positioned horizontally. On the left side, there is a small, rectangular port, likely for a SIM card or a small display. To the right of the port, there are two small, rectangular buttons, possibly for volume control or power. The background is a light blue surface with a repeating pattern of small, dark blue dots.
