Information Security considerations

Both regulatory information and dedicated exclusive application are secured and implemented in a factory-set-unalterable format by the manufacturer.

The regulatory information can be retrieved and displayed locally, even without an internet connection, and under the control of the end user in possession of the product.

The application scales the text size according to the display size, ensuring that the regulatory information is correctly displayed.

In addition to the electronic label, the labels, FCC ID, and IC ID are printed in the included user manual.
