Product introduction

Boxing is a kind of combat sport, by two opponents with the same physique and ability to cover their fists with gloves to fight each other, it is both an amateur and a professional sport, in the boxing training, usually use the boxing target to train the speed and strength of the players because the opponent's space is fleeting in the boxing match, compared with strength training, More important is the player's offensive and defensive response ability. The product trains people's response ability through electronic control of light guidance, and the sound effect prompts whether to accurately hit the target point, so as to effectively exercise people's overall coordination ability and sensing ability.
