

ISM tower top installations are performed by professional installers, who are M/A-COM employees.

Our installation manual is given to our customers, the end user. These end user customers are state, local, or federal agencies which deploy very large multisite systems. The customers are trained by our training department at M/A-COM, and have communication officers and departments for maintenance and day-to-day operations.

This manual as well as all of our manuals are maintained and are under revision control. Additional copies are saleable and available for purchase by our end user customers. Manuals are shipped with each piece of equipment regardless of how many pieces are purchased.
