Declaration Letter

Federal Communication Commission

Washington, DC 20554

To whom it may concern:

We, ClearOne, Inc. declare that:

The ClearOne DIALOG® 10 USB receiver (model: 860-6100-010, FCC ID: FBI-DIALOG10RX) is designed to be professionally installed by a qualified and trained system integrator or professional installer. ClearOne, Inc. has resources available to accomplish this through several mechanisms including but not limited to Hands on Training Workshops, ClearOne, Inc. University Online Training, as well as Product Documentation such as Quick start guides and Installation instructions.

As an example of the unique and specialized nature of the DIALOG 10 USB, the product can be configured by a software application that allows an integrator to connect to the receiver to view the Radio Frequency RF spectrum in the local environment to determine if there is an open channel with low interference that will allow the product to function properly. The receiver provides technical information like a Received Signal Strength Indicator (RSSI) that allows a system integrator to verify that the link between the transmitter and receiver will be strong throughout the intended usage space. General consumers are not knowledgeable about how to analyze the ambient RF noise spectrum or what RSSI is required for the system to operate properly. As another example, the DIALOG 10 offers a remote antenna accessory. A trained system integrator is required to know when the remote antenna is necessary and how that antenna must be installed for proper performance.

For the receiver, the permitted antennas will be included in the product's packaging. For the transmitters, the antennas will be included in the product packaging or integrated into the product in such a way that they cannot be removed or replaced. Installation of included antennas will be specified in the installation instructions and training materials.

The DIALOG 10 USB system will not be available for purchase by an average consumer. It will not be sold through retail outlets, nor through a web site to the general public and will not be available to consumers via mail order. It will be sold only to authorized system integrators or wholesale distributors.
