Installation Guidelines

The guidelines given here describe the conditions for optimum EMC performance, but it is recognized that it may not be possible to meet all of these conditions in all situations. To ensure the best possible conditions for EMC performance, within the constraints imposed by any location, always ensure the maximum separation possible between different items of electrical equipment. For optimum EMC performance, it is recommended that wherever possible:

- IEC 60936-1 clause 3-27.1 maximum distances from the antenna at which RF (Radio Frequency) levels can be expected. GMR20 (100W/m squared = 40cm [15.75"]) (10W/m squared = 120cm [47.24"]) GMR40 (100W/m squared = 60cm [23.62"]) (10W/m squared = 175cm [68.90"])
- Mount at least 1 m (3 ft) from any equipment transmitting or cables carrying radio signals e.g. VHF radios, cables and antennas. In the case of SSB radios, the distance should be increased to 2 m (7 ft).
- Mount other electronics and cables more than 2 m (7 ft) from the path of a radar beam. A radar beam can normally be assumed to spread 20 degrees above and below the radiating element.
- Electromagnetic Energy. The radar scanner transmits electromagnetic energy. It is important that the radar is turned off and/or DC power input be disconnected whenever personnel are required to come close to the scanner to perform work on the scanner assembly or associated equipment.
- It is recommended that the radar scanner is mounted out of range of personnel (above head height). Do not look directly at the antenna at close range as your eyes are the most sensitive part of the body to electromagnetic energy. When properly installed and operated, the use of this radar will conform to the requirements of ANSI/IEEE C95.1-1992 Standard for Safety Levels with Respect to Human Exposure to Radio Frequency Electromagnetic Fields.
- Magnetic compass: Mount the scanner unit at least x (TBD) m away from a magnetic compass.

FCC Compliance

The GMR 20/40 complies with Parts 15 and 80 of the FCC interference limits for Class B digital devices FOR HOME OR OFFICE USE. These limits are designed to provide more reasonable protection against harmful interference in a residential installation, and are more stringent than "outdoor" requirements.

Operation of this device is subject to FCC part 15 to the following conditions: (1) This device may not cause harmful interference, and (2) this device must accept any interference received, including interference that may cause undesired operation.

This equipment generates, uses and can radiate radio frequency energy and, if not installed and used in accordance with the instructions, may cause harmful interference to radio communications. However, there is no guarantee that interference will not occur in a particular installation. If this equipment does cause harmful interference to radio or television reception, which can be determined by turning the equipment off and on, the user is encouraged to try to correct the interference by one of the following measures:

- Reorient or relocate the receiving antenna.
- Increase the separation between the equipment and the receiver.
- Connect the equipment into an outlet on a circuit different from that to which the receiver is connected.
- Consult the dealer or an experienced radio/TV technician for help.

The GMR 20/40 does not contain any user-serviceable parts. Repairs should only be made by an authorized Garmin service center.
