A black and white photograph of a vintage electronic device, possibly a radio or television, with a white label in the foreground. The device has a dark, textured surface with several rows of small, round components, likely vacuum tubes or electronic components, arranged in a grid. A white label is placed in the foreground, partially obscuring the device. The label contains the text "MODEL:60-2755" and "FCCID:KTU602755". The device is mounted on a wooden surface, and there are some wires and cables visible on the left side.
