

Firstly, the front-end image sensor collects light signal, then the front-end DSP processes the light signal into digital signal, finally which will be compressed and processed by CPU, and then via TCP, IP to realize the remote monitoring