

Working principle of magnetic controller R25

R25 adopts programmed integration (internal unit is programmed and written the address code), once controller makes alarming/arming/disarming instruction, the program processes delay and outputs code address signal for relative instructions, which outputs through antenna after trapping by wave-trap and enlarged by Q1. (Code address signal includes a local fixed address code and control code that represents the function)