

DLS Electronics, 10-23-2007

Dear Bill Stumpf,

The e-Guard product that we are having DLS Electronics test, is primarily used in industrial applications and is installed by trained professionals at the installed facility, this would include engineers, technicians and maintenance personal. The up keep and maintenance are also provided on site by appropriate maintenance department.

This product is also professionally integrated by System integrators and onsite Information Technology departments.

This product under the existing instruction set is not provided to non commercial or industrial applications. It is not intended to be sold in any application that can not have professional installation.

Regards,

Robert B. Fitzpatrick
