

Think Wireless

The receiver receives the 900-MHz signal transmitted from the transmitter via its antenna. It then translates the frequency of this signal to that of satellite radio frequency. The satellite radio signal is transferred to the satellite radio receiver via a coaxial cable.