particularly inasmuch as none of the technical information regarding the AVRB7101 product is released for public consumption: All product data, application notes, operational details, circuit schematics, etc are available on a secure website only to qualified customers and vendors, under password-controlled access. This is in contrast to many manufacturers, who release their datasheets for public access and review: The Applicant does NOT provide general access to ANY of its technical data. For this reason we ask that the datasheet also be kept permanently confidential, which we realize is in contrast to normal practice for publicly-accessible manufacturer's data.

Sincerely,
