Headphone Safety. Listening to audio at high volume for extended periods of time can cause hearing damage. To avoid this problem, consider the tips below:

- (1) Keep the volume down;
- (2) Avoid prolonged, continuous listening; and
- (3) Wear headphones that isolate the wanted audio from background noise.

Wireless Safety. Turn ☐ off in areas where wireless use is forbidden or when it may cause interference or danger. Some specific situations are described below. In general, you should not use your ☐ with ☐ turned on any place you are not allowed to use your cell phone.

Turn Off Wireless When Flying. To prevent possible interference with aircraft systems, the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration regulations require you to have permission from a crew member to use your device's wireless service. If you have your wireless service turned off, you can use your ☐ for ☐ once a crew member has said it is okay to use electronic devices.

Be Careful Around Other Electronic Devices. ☐ generates, uses, and can radiate radio frequency (RF) energy and, if not used in accordance with its instructions, may cause harmful interference to radio communications and electronic equipment. Most modern electronic equipment is shielded from RF signals. However, RF signals may affect improperly installed or inadequately shielded electronic operating systems, entertainment systems and personal medical devices. If in doubt, check with the manufacturer. For personal medical devices (such as pacemakers and hearing aids), consult with your physician or the manufacturer to determine if they are adequately shielded from external RF signals.

Steps to Minimize Interference. If your ☐ does cause harmful interference to radio or television reception (which you can determine by turning your ☐ off and on), you can try to correct the interference by one or more of the following measures: reorient or relocate the receiving antenna for the radio or television; increase the separation between the radio or television and your ☐; connect equipment and receivers to different outlets; or consult the radio or television dealer or an experienced radio/TV technician for help.

Watch for Signs. There are some places where RF signals could constitute a hazard. For example, health care facilities, construction sites, and so forth. If you are not sure, look around for signs indicating that two-way radios or cell phones should be turned off.

FCC Compliance Statement. This device complies with part 15 of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) rules. Operation is subject to the following two conditions: (1) This device may not cause harmful interference; and (2) this device must accept any interference received, including interference that may cause undesired operation.

This device has been tested and found to comply with the limits for a Class B digital device, pursuant to part 15 of the FCC rules. These limits are designed to provide reasonable protection against harmful interference in a residential installation. However, there is no guarantee that interference will not occur in a particular installation.

This device meets the FCC Radio Frequency Emission Guidelines and is certified with the FCC as FCC ID number: WI5-1210.

Radio Frequency Exposure Information (SAR). Your device meets the U.S. government's requirements for exposure to radio waves. is designed and manufactured not to exceed the emission limits for exposure to radio frequency (RF) energy set by the U.S. FCC.

The exposure standard for devices employs a unit of measurement known as the specific absorption rate, or SAR. The SAR limit set by the FCC is 1.6 watts per kilogram (W/kg). Tests for SAR are conducted using standard operating positions accepted by the FCC with the device transmitting at its highest certified power level in all tested frequency bands.

Although the SAR is determined at the highest certified power level, the actual SAR level of while operating can be well below the maximum value. This is because is designed to operate at multiple power levels so as to use only the power required to reach the network. In general, the closer you are to a base-station antenna, the lower the power output. The highest measured SAR value for this model as reported to the FCC when held at least 0.39 of an inch (1.0 cm) from the body is 1.32 W/kg.

The FCC has granted an Equipment Authorization for this with all reported SAR levels evaluated as in compliance with the FCC RF exposure guidelines. SAR information on this is on file with the FCC and can be found under the Display Grant section of <http://www.fcc.gov/oet/ea/> after searching on FCC ID: WI5-1210.

This meets RF exposure guidelines when positioned at least 0.39 of an inch (1.0 cm) away from the body. sells -branded accessories that can be used to position the device at least 0.39 of an inch (1.0 cm) away from the body.
