

Madison Says:

Hurus love to play, but we can get bored. If you ignore us, we'll go to sleep. You can wake us up by shaking us or bringing another Huru into the area. If you let us sleep too long, we power down all the way. That gives us a chance to rest and makes sure our batteries don't run out too soon!

Go To Sleep!

Sooner or later, you're going to want your Huru to quiet down and get some rest. Just say "Go to Sleep!" and your Huru will start sleeping (see below).

Never Mind

When you're talking to your Huru, you can sometimes get a little confused. If you're trying to tell your Huru you'd like to chat but it doesn't seem to understand, it's probably waiting for you to tell it something else (like the name of a game you want to play or how you want to be entertained). When that happens, remember that you can always say "never mind" to tell your Huru you want to start all over.

SLEEPING

Sometimes, Hurus like to close their eyes and get some sleep. There are several ways this can happen.

1. After a conversation between two or more Hurus, they'll go to sleep.
2. You can tell your Huru to "go to sleep" when you're giving it voice commands.
3. If nothing interesting is happening, your Huru will go to sleep after a few minutes.

When your Huru is asleep, you can wake it up by calling it's name ("Hey, Chloe!") or by picking it up and shaking it.

Your Huru will also wake up if a new Huru enters the area and wants to start a conversation. This also happens if a sleeping Huru in the area is turned off and then turned back on.

If a Huru sleeps for too long, it will power off totally in order to conserve battery power. Just hit the power button to start it up again!

THOSE CRAZY HURUS!

In case you haven't noticed by now, Hurus have a mind of their own. Every so often, they'll decide they don't want to go along with what everyone else is doing.

If they're chatting with other Hurus, they might suddenly decide to change the subject or even start an argument. If your Huru start having a gross out contest, it's probably because someone was getting a little wild!

Also, Hurus might not always listen to you when you tell them what to do. If you tell your Huru you want to chat or laugh, and it decides it wants to play a game - it will let you know! Of course, you can always refuse to go along and say "never mind" to get things back on track.

THE TECHNICAL STUFF

Before you can start up your Huru, you'll need to insert the batteries and do a few other simple things.

Battery Installation

Your Huru requires 3 type AAA batteries. Be sure to install and position them properly as shown in the diagram below.

Battery Warnings

Remove batteries when your Huru will not be used for a long time. Battery installation should be supervised by an adult. Do not mix old and new batteries. Do not mix alkaline batteries with standard (carbon-zinc) or rechargeable batteries. Do not mix different brands of batteries. Only use batteries of the type recommended in this manual. Be sure to insert batteries with correct polarity. Remove exhausted batteries from the product. Be careful not to short circuit the supply terminals. Do not attempt to recharge non-rechargeable batteries. Remember: Improper use of batteries can result in heat generation, acid leakage, or explosion. This can cause injuries or damage your HuruHumi.

Sierra Says:

Hurus worry about the environment. We're happiest when you use high-quality rechargeable batteries to power us. Remember to keep one set charged and one in your Huru so you'll always have fresh batteries available! This will make your Huru - and the Earth! - lot's happier!

Note: When the batteries begin to lose their charge, your Huru will turn itself off.

TROUBLE SHOOTING

Hurus are pretty easy going and simple to operate. Of course, sometimes things can go wrong. When that happens, please review these possible solutions:

No face appears on my Huru's LCD screen - it's kinda creepy!

- The batteries are low. Carefully replace them according to the instructions in this manual.
- Press the reset button on the bottom of the Huru.

My Huru doesn't detect or talk to other Hurus - is it just shy?

- Try moving the Hurus closer together. Usually, two Hurus can detect each other at a distance of about 4 or 5 feet, but local conditions can reduce that range.
- Switch both Hurus off. Then turn them on one at a time as described earlier in this manual.
- Outside interference can cause problems with Huru-to-Huru conversations. Sometimes you'll have to move to a new area or reposition the Huru to eliminate the problem.

The Jake Says:

Hurus are sensitive - even The Jake! That means you need to have good manners when you talk to us. So, you be nice to The Jake and The Jake will be nice to you! Be sure to keep these things in mind:

- Avoid background noise. If it's too loud, we can't hear you so well!
- Speak in a normal, clear voice. If you yell, we won't pay attention!
- Wait your turn. If you talk when we're still talking, we won't pay attention - would you?
- Make sure we're listening. Wait a second or so after we finish talking before you start.
- If other Hurus are having a conversation in the area, we might be listening to them instead of you. Try moving farther away.

My Huru doesn't respond well to my voice commands - is it mad at me?

- Your Huru won't be able to hear you clearly if you're in an area with a lot of background noise. If you're somewhere noisy, move to somewhere a little more peaceful.
- Your Huru expects you to speak in a normal voice at a distance of about 18 inches away. If you're too close (holding the Huru like a microphone) or too far away, your Huru might not be able to understand you clearly.
- Try waiting a second after the Huru finishes talking before speaking to it. If the Huru is still talking, it won't listen to you.
- When there are other Hurus in the area, your Huru will usually pay attention to them instead of you. This is especially true if the Huru is already talking to the other Huru. When that's happening, it won't pay any attention to you at all. You can either wait for the conversation to finish or remove the Huru from the area so it talks to you instead of the other Hurus.

To Install or Replace Batteries

1. Remove the battery cover with a screwdriver.
2. Remove exhausted batteries and dispose of properly.
3. Replace with new batteries. Be sure the positive (+) and negative (-) ends of the batteries are facing the correct direction.
4. Replace the battery cover and tighten the screw.

Brandy's Guide to Chatting With Your Huru!

Hey, Brandy!

Let your Huru know you want to talk by saying "Hey, Brandy" or Jake, or whoever!

Hey! Whatcha want, Guru?

Your Huru will let you know it heard you and ask what you want to do. If it doesn't, then it didn't hear you. Read Jake's tips on Page 5 for the 411 on trouble shooting!

Next, just tell your Huru what you want it to do! Here are your choices!

Let's chat!

or

Talk to me!

or

Make me laugh!

or

Let's play!

or

Go to Sleep!

Your Huru will let you know it heard and ask you to pick a topic or activity!

Your Huru will say good bye!

Okay, let's chat!

What should we talk about?

I am soooo entertaining!

What would you like to play?

Okay, I'm outta here!

Each of the above activities has several choices!
Just tell your Huru which one you want to try this time!

Then your Huru goes to sleep!

How are you?

or

What makes you happy?

or

What bums you out?

or

Tell me about yourself!

or

Never mind!

How do you feel?

or

...life!

or

...feelings!

or

...style!

or

...people!

or

Never mind!

Tell me a joke!

or

Be funny!

or

Make faces!

or

Gross me out!

or

You decide!

or

Never mind!

Staring contest!

or

Face Fight!

or

Funny Faces!

or

Guess the number!

or

You decide!

or

Never mind!

After your Huru finishes doing what you asked it to, it listens for your next command! Chat? Talk? Play? It's up to you!

Hurus know lots of phrases!
Try them all!
