

This device is a portable low-power transmitter used to activate an associated receiver. The device employs a SAW RF oscillator at 315.0 MHz and a microcontroller. The transmitter is normally off until any button is activated. A switch activation enables the microcontroller, which activates the RF oscillator. The microcontroller generates the data waveform (pulse width modulation) for the RF oscillator.