

Satisfying 15.203 - Justifying Profession Installation for Chronotrack approved antennae

Q: How is the product marketed, restricted or otherwise limited from use by the general public. How is the product marketed to preclude use by the general public?

A: This system (transmitter and bundled choice of approved antennae) is only marketed and sold to verified established professional race timers, not to the general public.

Q: What guidance, training or contracts are in place to ensure that professional installers are adequately trained.

A: To complete a system sale, our customers are required (by contract) to attend a one-day training class, which includes warnings about using only approved antennae and accessories with the system. The user manual and sales contract also include warnings and reminders of the restriction to approved antennae and accessories.

Q: Again, what is special about the product that would require the equipment to be professionally installed?

A: This product is "special" only in that it is a relatively complex system in terms of overall system setup, yet it provides relatively narrow functionality (RFID tag presence in a given field at a given time) of little interest to the general public.

Additional Use-Case Reminder

Limited Application and Scope of Equipment. This product is temporarily installed in public spaces (roadways, parks, etc.) for brief periods (generally under 8 hours) for RFID reading during an event.
